Japs Fear Return Of Halsey's Fleet

By Associated Press

Enemy broadcasts said today the mighty U. S. Third Fleet withdrew from Jap home waters after sending 1200 carrier planes swarming over Tokyo airdromes for 12 hours yesterday, but warned the raiders might return at any moment. Tokyo said "about 150" Okinawa-based fighters carried on the unremitting air attack today, sweeping suicide airdromes on Kyushu.

The Mikado's air force made no announced attack on the Third Fleet's Task Force 38 but for the first time in months hurled a handful of interceptors against the U. S. 14th Air Force ranging over Asia.

Chinese troops making the only substantial ground gains of the war occupied Sincheng, former 14th USAAF base roughly 200 miles north of Canton and drove toward Kanhsien, another former American air base. Five airdromes have now been retaken by the resurgent Chinese.

Preliminary reports from the task force said the attack accounted for at least 154 planes, including 72 definitely destroyed. This covered only the first six hours of the attack. Only two of the enemy planes were in the air, both reconnaissance planes scouting the daring American fleet.

Other American air units hit 41 small Jap oceangoing vessels from Japan to Java, and 23 rivercraft in Java. The bulk of these 64 vessels were damaged.

Adm. Nimitz said strong air forces will continue to hammer enemy shipping and defenses "preparatory to further amphibious assaults."

Simultaneously, he announced Gen. MacArthur has assumed command of all Army Air Forces based on Okinawa, incidental to regrouping American air power in the western Pacific "for greater operating efficiency."

A current rumor in the Philippines has it that a lone Japanese plane rescued Gen. Yamashita, supreme Jap commander in the islands, who once boasted he would make MacArthur surrender.

MacArthur reported Australian troops under his command made two new landings in the Balikpapan area, "completing our control of the Balikpapan bay shore area." Other Aussies advanced a mile toward flaming oil fields and beat off two night infiltration attacks.

British forces pursing Japanese fleeing eastward toward Thailand, in the area about 90 miles southwest of Mandalay, have advanced seven miles in the rough country between Thazi and Taunggyi and established contact with the enemy east of Heho, Southeast Asia Command headquarters said.

Farther south, in the Sittang river bend area, 70 miles northeast of Rangoon, the Japanese continued to hold several villages, including Nyaungkashe, from which the British withdrawal under fire was reported yesterday.

Up-Draft Turns B29 Bottom Up

GUAM, July 11 (INS)—Up-drafts from fires set by B-29's in ancendiary raid on the Jap city of Wakayama were so intense they reversed the law of gravity, thrusting a fused incendiary bomb back into the bomb-bay of a Superfort commanded by Maj. Robert H. Langdale.

The fantastic experience of Langdale's crew in yesterday's five-pronged raid on Honshu was disclosed by 21st Bomber Command headquarters on Guam.

Headquarters also announced that reconnaissance photos revealed new damage to three more Jap cities—Kofu, Shimizu and Chiba, blasted by nearly 600 Superforts Saturday.

Langdale's plane, headquarters said, dropped its bombs over Wakayama. Preceding Superforts had set fierce fires surging miles into the sky, creating tremendous thermal updrafts.

After all the Superfort's bombs wer dropped crewmen were amazed to see them climb back into the bomb-bay, tear away the bomb-baydoor, damaging the horizontal stabilizer.

In a half-minute of weird action, a more intense updraft suddenly flipped the B-29 over on its back in a sort of half-loop, reversing its direction completely.

"It was like being in the middle of one of those horror movies," said the bombardier, Lt. Richard R. Baskett. "Water flasks and loose equipment of all kinds floated around in midair inside the ship, sometimes banging up against us."

Navigator Lt. Louis Avrami, told of the unexpected flip-flop executed by the huge Superfort.

"When I looked through the bomb-bay expecting to see fires I saw stars and the moon because I was actually looking up. Then I turned my head in the other direction and saw the fires below. For a split second I wondered if I were dead."

WANT-AD WIFE—Pvt. Clifford Poehling, back in Chicago after 11 months in a German prison camp, is shown with Mrs. Marie Nassey who answered his ad in a Chicago paper for a wife. They will be married shortly and return to Poehling's home in LaCrosse, Wis.

U-Boat May Have Sunk Brazil Ship

RECIFE, Brazil, July 11 (AP)—Survivors of the Brazilian cruiser Bahia, which sank in the Atlantic July 4 with heavy loss of life, were quoted today as saying the warship went down within three minutes following a terrific explosion.

A Brazilian naval officer here speculated the cruiser might have been attacked by the German submarine U-530, which surrendered yesterday at an Argentine naval base.

The officer said he had been informed an Allied destroyer attacked a submarine July 4 near Bahia, but lost contact.

(The Argentine naval ministry in Buenos Aires issued a communique early today saying the U-30 had nothing to do with the sinking of the Bahia.)

Churchill Paints Basque Seaport

ST. JEAN DE LUZ, July 11 (AP)—With a soft gray felt hat on his head and a cigar between his teeth, Prime Minister Churchill works daily with canvas and brushes, painting the picturesque little Basque seaport with the Pyrenees range towering in the background.

"I wanted to paint this scene ever since I first saw it 20 years ago," explained Churchill, who is resting here awaiting the Potsdam meeting.

Churchill is at his easel every afternoon, guarded by six husky plainclothesmen from Scotland Yard while curious Frenchmen watch from 50 feet away.

His wife and daughter spend their afternoons on the beach.

Mascot Stowaway Upsets Hub's Welcome to Heroes

Well arranged plans to welcome back air-borne and infantry heroes arriving at Commonwealth Pier today aboard the USS Gen. Bliss, a Navy Transport, were booted into Boston Harbor today with the discovery of a 13-year-old boy stowaway among the returning veterans.

The boy was taken into custody as soon as the transport docked while his worried soldier pals began to devise ways and means of obtaining his freedom.

The boy, identified by officers aboard the vessel, as Chris Kripiz, had been a mascot of the 121st Infantry Regiment of the 8th Infantry Division since they rescued him last December from a displaced persons camp at Schwerin, Germany.

A Czechoslovakian born in Milan, the boy speaks nine languages fluently and claims to have killed a German officer before his rescue.

There were numerous reports that the boy had been smuggled aboard the transport in a barracks bag but deadpan officers and men scoffed at such a suggestion.

The boy, known throughout the ship as "Christmas," a more pronounceable version of his name among the GI's, was in tears as he was separated from his pals, who shouted encouragement to him and promised that they would "spring" him.

The 121st chaplain, Capt. Peter Wiktor, of South Boston, consoled him and urged him to keep up his courage, assuring him that he was in friendly hands.

Soldiers aboard the transport reported that one of their number, a New Jersey resident, hopes to adopt the boy.

The uproar over the arrival of the stowaway upset plans for a rousing welcome for the 3824 returning veterans, 241 of whom are New England men.

Among them were 403 officers and men of the XVIII Corps (Airborne), including heroes of the 101st Air-borne's stand at Bastogne and veterans of air-borne operations at Stavelot, the Ruhr pocket and the Baltic campaign.

Largest unit aboard was the 21st infantry, which had 3189 officers and men. There were also small advance detachments of field artillery, tank destroyers and chemical mortar battalions and one Red Cross worker.

Waiting to greet the air-borne veterans was their corps commander, Maj. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgeway, who commanded the 82d Air-borne Division and jumped with them in Normandy on D-Day to be the only officer of his rank on French soil on the opening day of the invasion of Fortress Europe.

"They're the most magnificent troops in the world," he declared

Chennault Doubts Jap Surrender

KUNMING, China, July 11 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Chennault told a press conference "there is always the possibility the Japs will surrender, but in my opinion the chances are better than 50-50 they will not."

Asked for comment on a recently published remark by Gen. Stilwell that the war might last another two years, the U. S. 14th Air Force commander said if the Allies exploited their advantages "I don't think it is necessary to fight two more years to lick the Japs. They are in pretty bad shape and getting in worse shape daily," he said. "They are not in shape to fight a long war."

The Japanese have been moving planes from the home islands to Manchuria since the heavy American raids on Japan, Chennault said.

Army Mascot, 14, Trying to Thumb Way Back to U. S.

PARIS, July 11 (AP)—Freddie Pets, 14, who thumbed his way across Europe through five years of war, is now trying to get back to the United States the same way.

The stocky little four-footer is togged out in an American battlejacket and khaki field trousers and sports an Airborne patch, glider pilot's wings and a European theater ribbon with three battle stars.

He has been mascot for the First Armored Division in Italy, the 10th Armored Division in Germany and the 65th Infantry in Austria.

Freddie's father, a trapeze performer who traveled in a tent circuit in New York and Massachusetts, was killed during a performance in 1936. Freddie then went with his mother to her native Switzerland, where she died in an automobile accident when Freddie was seven.

Since then, he has "just traveled about."

"No one cared if I had a passport," Freddie explains. "I was just a little boy in dirty clothes. If they asked me questions I ran away."

How Jap Bombs Raked U. S. Ship

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—The Navy today told how three Japanese fighter-bombers damaged the transport Dickerson so badly off Okinawa April 2 she had to be sunk the next day.

Loss of the 25-year-old Dickerson, with 51 killed or missing and 15 wounded, had been announced previously. The craft, a high-speed converted destroyer, carried a crew of approximately 150.

Among the men lost were the Dickerson's captain, Lt. Com. Ralph E. Lounsbury of Seattle and the executive officer, Lt. Alexander G. McEwen of Duluth.

The trio of two-engined Japanese planes attacked at 6:30 p. m. Within 2½ hours the Dickerson was a charred, useless hull.

"The ship was ruptured in several places, the bridge was destroyed and serious fires spread," the Navy said. "Gas and flames quickly swept the bridge and well deck, causing explosions from the ready ammunition boxes."

Kidnaped Baby Is Restored to Parents by Woman Abductor Who "Yielded to Impulse"

Kidnaper Faked Birth To Account for Baby

MARION, O., July 11 (AP)—Even close friends of Mrs. Phyllis Lanman believed she was going to have a baby, it was related today after an infant in her possession was revealed as the missing Jean Eileen Creviston.

The 8-day-old girl, taken from a hospital crib Sunday night, was restored to her mother, Mrs. John L. Creviston, Marion socialite.

Mrs. Lanman, the 29-year-old childless wife of a Mansfield candy salesman, is in a hospital, recovering from a semi-hysterical shock that accompanied her confession to taking the child, Police Chief William E. Marks said.

A medical examination showed she had not experienced childbirth recently and a study of the baby's footprints broke down Mrs. Lanman's story that blue-eyed, dark-haired Jean was hers.

Before that, her friends were highly indignant when a police ambulance took her to a hospital for examination.

Mr. and Mrs. Carol Rowley, with whom she lived, told newspaper men they were convinced by the woman's appearance and actions that she was soon to become a mother.

She had experienced a miscarriage—her second—three months ago, but had not informed friends.

Recently she had bought a bassinette, baby clothes and a small dresser.

Checking accounts of her apparent pregnancy, Police Chief Marks said he recovered from her room a batch of cotton padding.

Marks said Mrs. Lanman insisted she really did not intend to take a child when she went to the City Hospital nursery.

"'After I looked at the babies,'" he quoted her, "'I decided to take the baby I got. I didn't know whose baby it was.'"

She went home, a signed confession stated, undressed the child, went to bed, informed her landlady that she had given birth to a child and asked her to summon a physician.

En route home she had stopped at a neighbor's to change Jean's diaper, providing the first clue that led to her arrest.

The woman was charged by Chief Marks with carrying away a child under 12, carrying a possible penalty of one to 20 years in prison.

Jean Eileen is the daughter of T-Sgt. and Mrs. John L. Creviston. Her 24-year-old mother, a Marion socialite, is the daughter of Roscoe D. Mezger, former Marion Safety Director.

Mrs. Lanman, whose husband, Edsel, is district manager for a candy vending machine company, was taken to City Hospital in a near-hysterical condition shortly after her confession.

Imogene In Plea for Reduced Bail

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., July 11—With hopes high, Imogene Stevens, 24-year-old Texas beauty, appeared here in superior court today seeking reduction of the $50,000 bail in which she is held in the fatal shooting of Albert Kovacs, submarine sailor.

The defense would like Judge John A. Cornell to cut the amount in half, a reduction which would send the dark-haired beauty into the arms of her adoring husband, Maj. George R. Stevens, Jr., since the latter's wealthy dad has promised to post bail of $25,000.

Mrs. Imogene Stevens

Meanwhile, the Veterans' Administration in Washington stepped into one phase of the case to deny reports that Kovacs' family could not collect his $10,000 insurance policy because he had been declared by the Navy to have died out of line of duty.

A spokesman said the $10,000 will be paid, although he declined to name the beneficiary, declaring this is against the policy of the administration. He said such insurance always is paid, except in case of treason, mutiny or refusal to wear the uniform.

Imogene wept when told her father-in-law would contribute $25,000 toward her bail.

She has been receiving daily visits from her husband, a paratroop major who flew home from Germany to be at her side.

GI Asks Aid In Wife Hunt

After a search of his own, a soldier back on special leave from the Pacific today asked a nationwide hunt for his pretty wife who mysteriously dropped out of sight more than three months ago.

He is PFC John Cameron of Tappen st., Brookline, former Brookline High School athlete, and his wife is Mrs. Catherine Cameron, 35, who took a job in a Somerville war plant when her husband went overseas.

She vanished April 9 after checking out at the plant, and has not been seen since.

Cameron was granted a 30-day furlough, but that ends Sunday and he must return to his ordnance outfit which, after he left, was almost wiped out in the terrific fight for Okinawa.

Mute Slays Wife, Baby In Peabody

Weeping and gesturing wildly, a former Boston boxer—a deaf mute—walked into Peabody police station today and wrote out before amazed officers this message: "I just killed my wife and baby."

The ex-boxer, David Horblit, 26, then accompanied doubting police to his home in Maple st. nearby, where his wife, Catherine, 22, also a deaf mute, lay battered to death in a double bed and his 20-month-old baby lay similarly slain in a crib.

Horbit then pointed out the murder weapon, a bloody claw hammer that had been thrown into a corner.

Arraigned in Peabody District Court before Judge Daniel C. Manning on two charges of murder, Horblit was ordered held without bail for the September grand jury.

The court procedure was carried on by penciled notes passed to Horblit. When Clerk Charles Powell showed him the note giving the judge's disposition, Horblit motioned for a pencil and wrote:

"Where is my brother? When will he come? He knows everything."

He was assured that his brother would see him later.

Police obtained a woman sign-language expert to aid in questioning Horblit before he was taken to Salem jail to await grand jury action.

In a lengthy and difficult interrogation—all on paper—Horblit allegedly told Police Chief James Murphy that he awakened early in the morning while his wife and baby, Carolyn, still were sleeping.

He said he got a hammer in the kitchen and battered his wife repeatedly, then killed his daughter in the same manner before dressing and walking to the police station.

He gave this reason, according to police: "My wife didn't love me any more. I couldn't stand it."

Desk Officer William J. Callahan was on duty when Horblit, who formerly lived in Chambers st., West End, entered the station and began making signs.

Unable to determine what he wanted, Callahan passed over a block of paper and a pencil and could hardly believe his eyes when he read Horblit's announcement.

DAVID HORBLIT

"Where do you live?" wrote Callahan, and the mute wrote, "I live at 5 Maple st. They are there."

Chief Murphy was notified, as well as Lt. Insp. Raymond Foley of the State Police and Medical Examiner Joseph P. W. Murphy.

The couple lived in the lower floor of a two-family house. On questioning, an upstairs tenant told Chief Murphy she had heard someone cry out but that everything quieted down right away.

Told there had been a double murder, she promptly swooned.

Mrs. Horblit was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Argetis of Lynn st., Peabody, and married Horblit about two years ago.

He had come to Peabody to work in a leather factory and they had become acquainted and had fallen in love through their mutual affliction.

Horlbit, a burly six-footer, won second prize in the heavyweight division of the 1941 New England Amateur Athletic Union boxing tournament at Boston Garden. He continued boxing and recently became a professional fighter.

Port Bill Back Before House

Passed by the Senate after virtually all opposition had been swept aside, the new Boston Port Authority bill with the full $15,000,000 appropriation restored, was returned to the House today for concurrent action.

Amendments that would have tied the hands of Gov. Tobin or the Port Authority in their efforts to place Boston in the forefront of postwar industrial and shipping activities were cast aside, and such was the strength of the support given the measure that only a single vote was cast against it.

The rising vote for passage was 25 in favor and 3 against, but when a rollcall was demanded, 28 voted in favor, with Sen. Charles F. Sullivan of Worcester casting the lone negative ballot.

An attempt to reduce the appropriation to $5,000,000 was beaten 27 to 1, Sen. Ralph W. Clampit of Springfield being the only supporter of his own amendment.

Other amendments designed to take from the Governor the power to appoint the five-man Port Authority also fell by the wayside. Senators expressed confidence Gov. Tobin would appoint able men to serve on the port panel.

A majority House vote is needed to concur with the Senate action, and a two-thirds approval for enactment of the bond issue. Some House members doubted whether the two-thirds vote could be mustered, in which event the bill would go to a conference committee to settle the differences between the two legislative branches.

In his unsuccessful attempt to have the appropriation reduced to $5,000,000, Sen. Clampit urged his colleagues not to write "too big a blank check," arguing that "nobody knows exactly what will be done with the money."

The attempt to take the appointive power away from the Governor, led by Sen. Richard S. Bowers (R.) of Brookline, was denounced by Sen. Charles I. Taylor (D.) of Paxton.

"This is a slap in the face of the Governor," Taylor declared. "In his political career he has made appointment satisfactory to the people at large. I for one resent it. I favor the Port bill, but I never will vote for it if it takes from the Governor the power that belongs to him."

Fight Looms Over Probe Bill

The bitterest partisan fight of the present legislative session was predicted today, when the order for an investigation of Boston's municipal finances and administration comes up for House debate on the question of adoption.

The order for the probe, introduced by Speaker Frederick B. Willis, was admitted by the House rules committee.

For the first time since his election to the speakership, Willis is expected to take the floor to argue for favorable action on the order, which Gov. Tobin would be unable to sign or veto.

The proposed investigating committee would consist of two Senators appointed by the president of the Senate and three Representatives named by the House speaker.

Succession Bill Seen Doomed

WASHINGTON, July 11 (INS)—A canvass of the Senate privileges and elections committee and influential Senate Democrats today indicated that President Truman's presidential succession bill is dead.

Democratic opposition to the proposal to make the Speaker of the House next in line for the presidency, after death or disqualification of the President or Vice President, appeared virtually unanimous. A counter measure may be evolved.

Strike Ties Up Detroit Milk

By Associated Press

A labor dispute in Detroit, one of a score across the country which kept some 50,000 men and women off their jobs, prevented half a million persons from getting milk today.

For the third straight day, deliveries of 30 per cent of the motor city's milk supply were tied up by a walkout of 1000 creamery company employes.

Other Detroit controversies curtailed or halted operations in six separate plants involving more than 8000 workers.

CIO oil and gas workers still were on strike in the United Fuel Gas Co. serving six eastern states; United Mine Workers closed five mines in Pennsylvania and Ohio; shipbuilding employes were out in New Jersey, and workers quit on B-29's in Chicago.

The 11-day walkout by 16,500 CIO United Rubber workers at the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. in Akron, O., continued.

Armless, Legless Vet Will Get $265 Monthly Pension

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—Uncle Sam stands ready to provide $265 monthly to help M-Sgt. Frederic Hensel, his first nephew to become a quadruple battle amputee in this war, start that little chicken farm.

That's the maximum pension payable to war veterans.

The Corbin, Ky., soldier whose legs were blown off above the knee and his left arm above the elbow when he stepped on a mine on Okinawa June 2, now is in the Army hospital at Battle Creek, Mich. Army doctors amputated his right hand.

He has said he's thinking about a little chicken farm when he gets artificial arms and legs.

In addition to that $265 pension, the government will guarantee up to $2000 of any loan he's able to arrange, provided he meets conditions of the GI bill. Also, he can go to school to study chicken farming, with the government paying the bill.

Allied Rulers In Berlin Meet

BERLIN, July 11 (INS)—The Allied governing body for Berlin, the Kommandatur, held its first formal meeting today in the capital's former veterinary college.

The college, known as the Tierarzliche Hochschule, is north of the center of the city on Luisenstrasse, in the Russian zone.

The agreement on the feeding on the basis of contributions by all parties was arrived at in a previous meeting between Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, deputy of Gen. Eisenhower, for the United States, Lt. Gen. Sir Ronald Weeks, for Britain, and Marshal Zhukov, for Russia.

Newspaper Strikers Ignore WLB Deadline

NEW YORK, July 11, (AP)—The 8 a.m. deadline set by the war labor board for striking newspaper deliverymen to return to their jobs passed today with no official word from the union and no men reporting for work.

The WLB had warned the striking Newspaper and Mail Deliverers' Union (unaffiliated) that its "closed shop" would be forfeited if the men did not end the 11-day walkout by 8 a.m. This would mean that publishers could hire non-union workers to distribute papers.

She filed a complaint charging Turk with unlawful possession of her property. He has Sally's automobile, it was alleged.

Nubbins, Saved From Death, 4 Yrs. Old Today

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 11 (AP)—This is the fourth birthday of Forrest "Nubbins" Hoffman, the game kid who got up off the floor last fall to lick a seemingly fatal ailment, but his 50,000 fans can't give him what he wants for a present.

It's a brother to fight with and a little sister to love.

The nations sorrowed when physicians despaired of saving Nubbins.

But an operation for a bladder ailment was successful and Nubbins began a comeback.

Today, not able to play alongside the more robust boys and girls of his neighborhood but happy and cheerful, nevertheless, Nubbins was doing his best to promote a birthday cake. Mother, Mrs. Marshall Hoffman, says a cake doesn't fit his diet.

Slugged Teacher Held as Drunk

Wearing dark glasses and showing facial scars, George Dawson, 47, Manhasset, Long Island, high school teacher who was beaten in his hotel room by two men in Navy uniform July 4, was arraigned in municipal court today before Judge Carr on a charge of drunkenness.

A plea of not guilty was entered and he was held in $25 bail for hearing July 17, the same date set yesterday for the hearing of the two sailors charged with assault and battery and held in $1000 bail each.

The Navy men are Gerald M. Casper, 19, of Mandan, N. D., and Donald F. Coston of Geneva, N. Y.

2 Running for Mayor Have 100 Dead Signers

Names of more than 100 dead persons were signed to nominations papers for two mayoralty candidates, it was disclosed today when papers of the aspirants for Boston municipal offices were opened for public inspection.

One set of papers listed 55 dead persons in what City Hall veterans called one of the "most flagrant cases of fraud" within memory. Another contained 50 names of persons who died since the 1944 voting list was compiled.

Also pointed to as evidence of fraud were 50 signatures obviously written by the same person. The similarity in handwriting was so apparent the election commission clerks did not bother to check their eligibility as voters.

The possibility of criminal action against the candidates was seen by political observers who pointed out that the candidates signed sworn statements that each signature had been made by the person whose name appeared on the list.

Not since 1937 has the question of names of dead persons being used on a candidate's papers been raised. At that time one candidate was found to have less than five names of dead persons on his papers and the public clamor was so great the candidate withdrew from the mayoralty race.

Check of other candidates' papers revealed that a city employe recently promoted by Mayor Kerrigan had signed the papers for one of Kerrigan's opponents.

The election commissioners said they could not vouch for the authenticity of signatures but merely certify the names as those of registered voters qualified to sign papers. The question of authenticity was one for the Ballot Law Commission, they said.

Thirteen candidates were certified in the mayoral contest, including Mayor Kerrigan, Cong. James M. Curley, School Committeeman Clement A. Norton, Governor's Councilor John J. Sawtelle, former Fire Commr. William A. Reilly, School Committeeman Joseph C. White, former Committeeman Joseph Lee, John J. Concannon, John R. Buckley, Michael P. Feeney, Asst. Dist. Atty. Edward M. Sullivan, Chester A. Dolan and former Cong. Richard M. Russell.

BARBARA HUTTON (RIGHT), ACTOR PHILIP REED
She Seeks Divorce From Actor Cary Grant

Barbara, Filing Suit, Denies She'll Rewed

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, July 11—I was not surprised when Barbara Hutton filed suit for a divorce against Cary Grant right in Los Angeles. For a time she considered going to Las Vegas. That w.: when the report was current that she would wed Actor Phil Reed, but a few weeks ago she told me she had decided against a Nevada divorce.

I talked with Barbara again after her suit against the famous actor was filed. She said, "I decided to file suit in Los Angeles because I have no plans to marry anyone, and I do not think it looks well for me to rush off to Nevada and get an immediate divorce. I am divorcing Cary because our reconciliation proved we cannot live together as man and wife."

Barbara said her little son, Lance, taken away last year without her knowledge by the child's father, Count Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow, has been with her since June 22.

"His happiness," she told me, "is first in my life and I certainly have no intention of leaving my home when he's with me."

Her cousin, Jimmy Donahue, had arrived unexpectedly and it was a very happy reunion.

The suit filed by Barbara's attorney, Jerry Giesler, for his wealthy client, heiress to the Woolworth millions, had the simple accusation of mental cruelty. Naturally, Barbara asked for no money.

Cary, with whom I have talked several times since his second reconciliation with Barbara failed, said: "I feel badly that we couldn't make a go of our marriage. I honestly tried, and I believe Barbara did, too.

"Her ideas and mine were different. She was brought up in Europe and, well, I like prize fights and my gang. Barbara's friends were mostly continental titled people.

"She is a wonderful woman, kind and sweet, and I have only the best thoughts and wishes for her happiness."

There had been a rumor that Cary would marry pretty, little Betty Hensel. When I asked him he said: "How can I say what I will do when Barbara and I are not divorced? Betty is a very nice girl, but I have made no plans to marry her."

Women, Soldier Hurt in Crash

Two women and an Army lieutenant were injured today when an Army command car was in collision with a freight car at a railroad crossing at C st., South Boston.

Mrs. Julia Varz, 36, Savin Hill ave., Dorchester, suffered possible fracture of several ribs and leg cuts. Miss Edna Sorensen, 19, Dillingham st., Dorchester, received a possible fracture of the right foot and cuts of the face and legs. They were taken to Carney Hospital.

Second Lt. Frank Fleming, 26, of the Army Base, suffered a fractured knee and nose. He was treated at the Base Dispensary.

$25 for Cow's Tail Bitten Off by Dog

SHELTON, Ct., July 11 (AP)—The aldermen decided a cow's tail was worth $25.

They awarded that amount to Peter Rogowski, who filed a claim for damages after a stray dog bit off the tail of one of his cows.

Ex-Marine Accused In Manicurist Killing

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 11 (INS)—A former marine was charged today with the first-degree strangle murder of Ruth Caputo, 32-year-old manicurist.

He was identified as Louis Dwight Brookings, 20, Syracuse. Police said he had been dishonorably discharged from the Marine Corps six months ago. Brookings was arrested still wearing his Marine uniform.

Granny Newsie

PEORIA, Ill., July 11 (AP)—A grandmother is delivering the Peoria Morning Star, fulfilling a pledge to two soldier sons to keep the route in the family as it has been since 1929.

Mrs. Haskell Bandy, mother of four and grandmother of three, hikes over a hilly route.

Her two eldest sons and a daughter formerly covered the route. They wanted their young brother to succeed them, but he had to leave for high school too early.

Two Mayors Renominated

With the lightest primary vote in the city's history, Somerville voters renominated Mayor G. Edward Bradley, who amassed 7234 votes, while Medford also renominated Mayor Walter E. Lawrence.

Alderman Harold A. Palmer, with 2586 votes, ran far behind Mayor Bradley to defeat School Committeeman William B. Bailey for second nomination.

In Medford, with two precincts to be heard from, Rep. Michael F. Skerry was leading Col. John J. Carew by about 200 votes for the Democratic mayoralty nomination.

The 8th Midlesex District, embracing Framingham, Ashland, Sherborn, Sudbury and Holliston, was in the Democratic column today for the first time, with the election of Police Chief Willian W. Holbrook of Framingham to the Massachusetts House.

Holbrook won with a 33-vote majority over Charles E. Adams.

Grandma Held in Murder Of Baby Who Balked at Bath

MEDIA, Pa., July 11 (AP)—A grandmother was held without bail on murder charges early today in the death of a 2½-year-old Sandra Lee McCann, whose soldier daddy was killed in Italy without having seen her.

Asst. Dist. Atty. William Toal said Mrs. Anne E. Jufficy, 44, told him "Sandra became balky" when she attempteld to bathe her.

"The grandmother said she lifted the baby from the tub and 'patted' her resoundingly in an effort to make her behave," Toal said.

"These blows, we charge, caused the little girl's death," Toal asserted, "for welts and bruises cover every part of the body except the ankles and feet."

The child's death was reported a sroutine, but when Deputy Coroner Margaret H. Ward observed the bruises, she told Toal "This child looks to me as if she was badly beaten. She may have t'en beaten to death."

The child's mother, Mrs. Roberta McCann, now employed in a Bridgeport, Ct., war plant, was reported en route to Media.

Fish Pour Into Hub, But Prices Still Soar

By WARREN STEVENS

Ever increasing supplies of fish are pouring into the Boston market—but that's no break for the public. Faced with acute shortages of meat, people have turned more and more to fish as a substitute. Restaurant menus, too, have been featuring much more fish than meat, and practically every pound of fish that comes into the port of Boston nowadays is finding its way directly to retail and restaurant outlets to meet the demand.

More fish is becoming available now than at any time since the start of the war, due to the lifting of restrictions following the end of the conflict in Europe.

But fish prices, in the face of the vast increase in the supplies, are out of all proportion, and it's the public, as usual, which pays.

Ceiling prices were set on fish by the OPA in 1943, when runaway prices demanded immediate action to control an inflationary rise.

Two schedules were set, one for the summer or peak season, for incoming fish supplies, and another for the winter or slack season.

The ceilings, which applied to fishermen, wholesalers and retailers, were based on the figures of 1942, when prices were somewhat lower than in 1943, but still more than double those of 1939.

Think back, now, to 1942, when the nation faced the greatest crisis in its history with war on two world fronts.

Nazi submarine wolfpacks roamed the fishing grounds and the rest of the Atlantic almost at will. Tankers, fishing boats and other vessels were easy prey.

Boston, by Naval order, was a closed port. Fishing vessels were permitted to leave or enter the harbor only between sunrise and sunset.

Many vessels of the mighty Boston fishing fleet had been taken over by the Navy for its own operations.

Of those that remained, only a hardy few dared to venture out for more than a one-day trip.

Trips were few and far between, compared with prewar days, and every catch that came in was snapped up eagerly by purchasers, to keep the port's billion dollar fishing industry in some semblance of operation.

Prices rose, and action was essential. The OPA set ceilings under which the industry has been operating since.

The ceiling price for fish off the vessel at the Fish Pier was almost double that which fishermen normally received before the war, but there was little quarrel with that, due to the scarcity and risk involved in going out and returning with a catch.

The wholesaler, too, was allowed a markup on the basis of the loss in waste he suffered in preparing the fish for retail markets, and the cost of refrigeration and transportation.

The retailer, on the other hand, was allowed a 100 per cent markup to realize a profit.

That's why the fisherman gets a ceiling of 8¼ cents a pound for mackerel, for instance, while your retailer is selling it for 29 cents a pound today. Cod, off the boat, is 6¼ cents but cod fillets are 33 cents retail, while haddock retails at 17 cents, compared to 7 cents for the fishermen.

But today the Port of Boston no longer is closed.

Fishing vessels can ply the Atlantic grounds with no fear of Nazi undersea wolfpacks.

The Navy is turning back fishing vessels in increasing numbers, and the Boston fishing fleet is bringing in ever larger supplies.

Only two days ago one vessel arrived in port with almost 250,000 pounds of various kinds of fish. Back in 1940, its peak catch was slightly more than 150,000 pounds.

The fishing industry is well on its way back to the normalcy of prewar days. The only hardships the fisherman faces now are those he expects in the regular pursuit of his trade.

The greatest hardship is on the public, which still is forced to pay prices inflated by the impact of war on the fishing industry, an impact that virtually was removed with the arrival of V-E Day.

Eggs in Memphis

MEMPHIS, July 11 (AP)—E. L. Terry walked into a restaurant, announced he was Memphis' egg-eating champ and ordered a dozen.

Marine Sgt. Gilbert Harris promptly challenged his claim, put down two dozen and topped them off with three cups of coffee.

"I'm still hungry," Harris said. "Want to bet for 24 more?"

Terry had enough.

Senator Urges End of UNRRA

WASHINGTON, July 11 (INS)—Sen. Russell (D.) of Georgia, said today the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration "should be abolished."

Russell, recently returned from Europe, declared he found UNRRA "a waste of manpower and money" and "a cause of confusion."

"I couldn't find that they have done anything except get some milk for children and expectant mothers . . . I look after a few displaced . . . camps, they're not doing . . . ing the Army and Lend-L . . . can't do," he said.

SLEEPERS CUT SUNDAY

NEW YORK, July 11 (INS)—Withdrawal of 163 sleeping cars from service between 42 cities beginning next Sunday was announced today by the Pennsylvania railroad. This is in compliance with the ODT order to railroads to make 895 sleepers available for military use.

Several inquiries arrive at this office daily regarding information in obtaining discharges for men in service. Requests are being made either by wife, parent or other members of family seeking information to have a serviceman discharged because of dependency and hardship at home because of illness, etc.

In answer to these questions such applications must be made through Home Service Bureau of local Red Cross Chapter or headquarters of either First Naval District or First Service Command Headquarters. These agencies will advise applicants as to procedure and necessary affidavits which must be filed.

Q—Could you please tell me where to apply for an honorable discharge pin? I have an honorable discharge from the WAAC. M. B., Stoughton.

A—Discharged members of the WAAC are not entitled to World War II honorable discharge buttons because that organization was not considered a part of the armed forces. However, when it became known as the WAC, a component part of the Army, honorably discharged members are entitled to button and all other benefits enjoyed by soldiers.

Q—My husband and I were married in February, but did not get around to filing application for Family Allowance until May. Now I've received a notice of approval but it is effective the 1st of May instead of Feb. My husband is willing to have the deduction taken from his pay; won't the Government make my payments retroactive to the date of my marriage? E. R., Brockton.

A—Family allowance is effective the first of the month in which application is filed. Even though the soldier is willing to contribute for a period prior to the date of filing, the government allowance cannot be paid.

Q—If a soldier had 84 points in May, can't he be credited with one for June to make the 85 required for his discharge?

H. T., Taunton.

A—No, he cannot. His points must have been acquired as of 12 May, 1945.

Q—May an honorably discharged soldier who is not able to work at the present time draw unemployment insurance until he is well enough to take a job?

"Discharged Vet."

A—No, he cannot draw unemployment insurance. It is payable only to those who are able to work and are available to accept a position.

Pre-College Party

By BETTY ALDEN

ONLY A FEW DEBUTANTE PARTIES are scheduled for the summer season, and in the early fall there will be an occasional luncheon and tea before many of the girls leave for college.

Entering Vassar in the fall, Miss Frances Duncan Walker will be presented at a dance Saturday evening given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Walker of Brookline at the Longwood Cricket Club. Ruby Newman's orchestra will furnish the music and there will be an ushers' dinner at the Harvard Club earlier in the evening.

Ushers will include Ens. William E. Foster, USNR; Frederick R. Wulsin, Jr.; Allan C. Butler, USNR; Henry Faxon, USNR; Thorvald S. Ross, Jr., USNR; William G. Rueter, Jr., USA; Peter Harwood, USNR; Dean Boylan and Frank Garfield. Dining with them will be the honored debutante, her two hour guests, Miss Clare Thompson of Scarsdale, N. Y., who has just graduated from Rogers Hall, and Miss Virginia Harlow of New York City and Duxbury, Miss Gwendolen Fearing, Miss Diana Beebe, Miss Marcia King and Miss Margaret Louise Hewitt.

Miss Walker was graduated from the Winsor School in June and is a provisional member of the Junior League.

ANOTHER DATE on the debutante calendar is Thursday, Sept. 13, when Miss Wilhelmina Mixter Eaton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Eaton, Jr., of Wellesley Hills, will be honored at a tea to be given by her mother at their home from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Miss Eaton attended the Beaver Country Day School and was graduated in June from the Wellesley High School. She is a provisional member of the Junior League.

On Sept. 15 Miss Rosemarie Therese Caulfield, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Caulfield of Waban, will be the guest of honor at a luncheon to be given for her at the Hotel Willard in Washington, D. C., by her brother-in-law and sister, Lt.-Comdr. and Mrs. John Sweeny of Washington.

Miss Caulfield was graduated from the Academy of the Assumption in Wellesley Hills and will enter Lasell Junior College this fall.

Famous Hollywood Screen Star says:

"You bet I use Arrid! I wouldn't be without its wonderful protection for a moment. Some people may think it isn't nice to talk about under-arm perspiration, but it's a whole lot worse to neglect perspiration and have it spoil a dress you treasure. So I unhesitatingly shout the praises of Arrid deodorant cream."

3 U.S. Girls Who Wed PWs Protest Loss of Husbands

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11 (AP)—Three American girls who secretly married Italian prisoners of war are highly indignant at the War Department over an abrupt separation from their husbands.

"It isn't fair," protested Mrs. Norma Scorza, 23. "If the Army doesn't want the boys to get married, they shouldn't let them go out to dances and parties. The fellows are young and good-looking and of course they fall in love. What else does the Army expect?"

Their three Italian soldier mates, who violated U. S. War Department regulations by marrying while stationed at Camp John Knight, Oakland, as members of a servise unit, are now en route to an Arizona prisoner of war camp.

They are Guiseppe Bertolotti, 24, Maurizio Scorza, 22, and Frederico Mazzonchini, 23. Antioch, Cal., Methodist Church records show that Bertolotti wedded Mildred Circo, 26, June 3; and that a double ceremony threre June 17 united Scorza and Norma Romeo, 23, and Mazzonchini and Virginia Panfili, 21. These girls are cousins.

Airline Hostess Invents 'Beer-Do'

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 11 (AP)—Glamor out of a beer bottle is the latest discovery on the hair-dressing front, and TWA hostesses here swear it works.

One, tired of losing her curls every time it rained, came up with the beer formula.

Explaining the new "beer-do", its pretty inventor said: "Dip your curls in the beer, and wait for the mto dry. Then just let it rain! Shake your head, let the rain fly off—and take a look . . . every curl right in place!"

Great John L. On Two Screens

"The Great John L.," made by Bing Crosby and starring a Chest named Greg McClure, is now to be seen on both the Majestic and the Old South Theater screens.

This latest history of Boston's John L. Sullivan is now in its third successful week at the Majestic. It opened the Old South screen yesterday.

Considerable controversy attends the unreeling of the current version of the Great Myth. Oldtimers who saw Sullivan perform his mighty deeds with their own eyes argue that John L. was a great American whose life should not be tampered with.

These cauliflower critics aver that this movie really is just another love story of the gaslight era, takes Sullivan's fighting ability for granted.

But the Majestic boxoffice figures are proof that quantities of the Boston Strong Boy's fellow hometowners find "The Great John L." worthy entertainment.

PIN-UP QUEEN of Pills' and Powders is Ruth Hussey in "Bedside Manner," the new Andrew Stone production now on the Tremont screen. John Carroll co-stars in the hilarious screen version of Robert Carson's magazine story.

Follies Slated for MGM Road Show

"Ziegfeld Follies," which is to have its world premier at the Colonial Theater where the late Florenz Ziegfeld regularly brought the original "Ziegfeld Follies," may be MGM's first road show attraction since "Gone With the Wind."

The local engagement and a subsequent run in Pittsburgh are expected to determine Metro's policy on the picture. In any event, admission price on the pre-release bookings will be pegged at $2.40, matinee and evenings.

Initial engagements will be on a two-week basis only, with two shows daily at 2:15 and 8:15 p. m.

Metro's most elaborate production has an imposing cast, including Fred Astaire, Lucille Ball, Lucille Bremer, Fanny Brice, Judy Garland, Kathryn Grayson Lena Horne, Gene Kelly, James Melton, Victor Moore, Red Skelton, Esther Williams and William Powell, the latter recreating his "Great Ziegfeld" role.

In addition, there are the superlatively beautiful Ziegfeld girls, Edward Arnold, Marion Bell, Cyd Charrisso, Hume Cronyn, William Frawley, Robert Lewis, Virginia O'Brien and Keenan Wynn.

FIRST TASK

FAILURE of the United Nations Conference in San Francisco to include international opium controls in the new world charter has resulted, as predicted, in a virtual collapse of all organized opposition to narcotics traffic and thus is an urgent danger to civilization.

It is a pity that the conference did not take the obvious and logical measures to combat this evil traffic.

It is especially a pity that the American delegation—which was fully informed of the dangerous situation impending—did not press for adoption of such measures.

Even the old League of Nations, which was a dismal failure in so many and in fact in nearly all other matters, provided an effective and successful agency for international opium control and in consequence was credited with one of its few contributions to world betterment.

It would have been an act of simple wisdom for the new world organization, which hopes to avoid the fatal mistakes of the old League, to have perpetuated the one institution of its predecessor which was an asset to humanity.

COMMISSIONER HARRY J. ANSLINGER of the Narcotics Section, who sought vigorously but futilely to have an international opium control organization made a part of the new charter, has now proposed a new conference of representatives of all members of the United Nations.

The purpose is to set up in permanent and effective form an organization to be known as the United Nations Opium Commission.

This would revive and salvage at least the remnants of the defunct League of Nations opium advisory committee, under which the first real progress against the narcotics evil in world history was made.

Mr. Anslinger had hoped to accomplish this at San Francisco, but having failed he now philosophically observes:

"We shall now do our best for quick action without such a directive, for the world narcotics situation is truly an URGENT DANGER.

"The war has engulfed the old controls in chaos, and my Federal enforcement organization is getting set for a FLOOD of smuggled narcotics into the United States and a SPREAD OF THE NARCOTICS HABIT as a result of conditions which have placed great numbers of our men for prolonged periods in the opium-producing, opium-using sections of the world."

THE WORLD'S greatest menace from narcotics is centered in the former Asiatic possessions of Great Britain and the Netherlands, now occupied by the Japanese and being used by the Japanese, as Mr. Anslinger says, "to set up the monopolies to distribute opium as a weapon of war against conquered peoples."

These areas will ultimately, and probably quite soon, be restored to British and Dutch control.

The British and Dutch governments were PREVIOUSLY pledged against opium monopolies in the areas, responding to overwhelming world opinion and urgent world need in the matter.

THEY MUST BE PLEDGED AGAIN TO THE SAME RESPONSE TO WORLD OPINION AND NEED, AND THE INTERNATIONAL NEGOTIATIONS WHICH COMMISSIONER ANSLINGER PROPOSES ARE ESSENTIAL TO THAT VITAL PURPOSE.

It is a comfort that after such a grievous and tragic set-back to world opium control as that suffered at San Francisco, Mr. Anslinger still promises:

"Persons sensitive to the rising peril of illicit narcotics can rest assured that the world's experts will continue their efforts unflaggingly despite occasional set-backs."

WHO CHECKS the penny-in-the-slot weight machines? I stepped on six today and each one registered differently. Speaking of weight machines, I know a fellow whose wife is a bit on the plump side. Every time this couple gets near a weight machine the husband says: "Let's see what you weigh, Honey." Of course, that is one of those things which try a plump girl's soul. Not only does this unfeeling husband continually insist upon weighing his wife but he always has some pointed comment on the result such as: "Papa's baby is getting to be a big girl now." or: "Don't worry, Honey, you may be a bit stout but you are stylish." That certainly is cruelty to a wife. He should be ashamed of himself.

Charming ex-wife of an aircraft company executive. She is the holder of the California record for alimony payments. Mrs. Fleet was recently awarded $1,421,400 in cash, two homes in California and a farm in New York State. She also gets custody of three children. The Hollywood alimony payment record is held by Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., who received $650,000. The national record is I believe held by "Liz" Whitney, who is said to have received a $3,000,000 settlement.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—Didn't Bing Crosby make his debut as a professional singer at a night spot called The Tent in Los Angeles? A—Couldn't say. However, I'll ask Bing next time I see him and get the information direct from headquarters. I think Crosby made his first appearance in a musical show produced by Harry Carroll at the Orange Grove Theater, Los Angeles. Q—When was the saying: "Whad'yemean, you lost your dog?" popular. A—I think its was around 1912. I believe Tad Dorgan originated this saying. It was also the title of a popular song.. Q—Shouldn't there be a rule that horses should always be entered to win? That is, never just for a "prep" or "tightener." A—No if horse racing is to be considered a sport rather than strictly a gambling proposition. A horse in training must be brought to top form gradually. Racing form can be achieved only by actual racing. Real turf enthusiasts know that and do not object. Only people who look upon a race track as a sort of a glorified gambling slot machine complain.

WRITES A MARINE: "Those Hollywood make-up experts are really miracle men. All during my stay in the Pacific I have had a pin-up girl whose photograph I have gazed at admiringly. She seemed a combination of Cleopatra, the Queen of Sheba and Jean Harlow. Arriving in Hollywood on leave, I managed to arrange a meeting with the girl of my dreams. Imagine my surprise and disappointment to find that actually in real life she had no more personality than a squash pie. It was a bitter blow. Still I recovered from it with the help of a red-haired coffee shop waitress I met. She really had everything I thought the movie cutie pin-up girl had."

LONGSHOTS: Add to list of longshots: Odds against hole-in-one at golf are 8436-to-1. Against a man being struck by lightning, 300,000-to-1. I question this lightning quotation. It is too general. FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

NEW YORK, July 11—A campaign of propaganda is now in progress to repudiate President Roosevelt's pledge to Congress that a group of "approximately" 1000 refugees from Continental Europe who were brought here last summer would be returned to their homeland "upon the termination of the war."

Westbrook Pegler

These people have been quartered at a disused military post near Oswego, N. Y., and an organization calling itself the Oswego Citizens' Advisory Committee has implored President Truman and Congress to waive the Roosevelt promise and their own agreement that their asylum here would be temporary.

This probably will be the way of it, after all, and I believe most Americans will wish them well but with a dubious hope that all of them will be able to cleanse their minds of European politics and become Americans.

AS FAR AS we know, this is the only group of refugees so admitted under Mr. Roosevelt's decree and, if that is the case, we may hope that there is no Trotsky among them. But, from the beginning, the proceeding has been lawless and a calculating imposition on the moist sympathy of the American people.

It was flatly predicted at the time of their admission that they would not be required to go back and the propaganda to admit them permanently began within a few months after their arrival.

Incidentally, although Mr. Roosevelt told Congress that these refugees would be "predominantly" women and children, that was not the case.

However, a prompt challenge of this action probably did thwart an intention to bring in many more thousands without the slightest regard for their politics or their fitness for immigration under the laws which the American people adopted for their own protection, convenience and domestic peace.

Long before Mr. Roosevelt blandly advised Congress of his own decision to ignore the Immigration laws in this case, Harold Ickes had proposed that we admit to our off-shore islands, where distress, continued under the New Deal, provides inviting material for a Communist conflagration, as many refugees of the Spanish Communist revolution as we could find shipping for.

Not all refugees from the victorious Franco army in Spain who had fled to France were Communists. But the war in Spain had been a practice war between Communism and Nazi-Fascism and the Communists had lost.

Therefore, it was reasonable to assume that in the immigration proposed by Mr. Ickes we would receive in a badly troubled and remote American outpost a horde which would immediately join the American Communists in waging civil war.

★ ★ ★

LATER, Mr. Roosevelt proposed that our immigration laws be suspended for the duration of the World War and Francis Biddle, his Attorney General, appeared before the Ways and Means Committee of the House to urge compliance.

For justification he said that otherwise it would be necessary for us to pay ourselves a head tax of $8 on every captured German, Italian and Japanese soldier brought here for detention.

Moreover, it was argued, we might otherwise embarrass ourselves in the eyes of our Allies by inflicting on visiting political and military guests the formalities of our immigration stations.

Both excuses were a flimsy pretext for the President's arbitrary action in the case of the 1000 Oswego refugees later on, although Mr. Mr. Biddle said at the time: "I can assure you that the President has no intention of exercising the powers so as to remove immigration barriers for any purpose not connected with the war effort."

Denied this legal permission to open the the country as France had opened her doors, for years to her great injury, Mr. Roosevelt finally ignored the law and defied Congress.

This step was the admission of the Oswego party. There was no assurance that these would be all. The group, when they did arrive were not, as he had told Congress they would be, "predominantly" women and children, and proof of the fact that there was no intention to return them, according to his promise, comes now.

★ ★ ★

MOREOVER, these refugees already had been rescued from the Germans and were as safe as any other civilians on the American side of the lines, in Italy. And the basis on which they were selected would seem to have been personal and arbitrary in which case influence exerted through individual friends and relatives already living in the United States might have superseded other tests of distress or worthiness.

The current agitation is sordidly political, arising from the New York mayoralty campaign and constitutes an imposition on the humanity of law-abiding Americans.

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, July 11—There's been a lot of talk, but now it's official that Shirley Temple is grown up. She gets the suave and smooth Joseph Cotten as her co-star in "Suddenly It's Spring," an original purchased by David Selznick from Sid Sheldon.

Sheldon is the author of "Dream of Music," Vera Zorina's Broadway show that was long on extravaganza but not so long on the "run."

Shirley Temple

Perhaps I should have said this picture is a three-star proposition. There's another role for a woman equally important with Shirley's—and while it isn't definite there's a good chance Joan Fontaine will do it. She has another year to go on her Selznick contract and even though they haven't been seeing eye to eye, Joan is too smart to sit out a contract. Dore Schary is the producer named.

★ ★ ★

FAY WRAY, who I always thought was one of the most beautiful women on the screen, is coming back into pictures after an absence of four or more years. Fay, during that time, has been in the East with her husband, Robert Riskin, who was chief of the Overseas Motion Picture Bureau of OWI. Bob has resigned and will make his own picture, "The Magic City," with Fay as his star. That won't be until 1946. However, she will not be able to work until after the arrival of her baby in December. Bob was one of the top writers in Hollywood before he assumed his OWI post. He's writing his story for "The Magic City."

★ ★ ★

IF WARNERS ever get around to showing "Saratoga Trunk," you'll see John Warburton as Bartholomew Van Sneed, the aristocratic young man who gives Gary Cooper competition for Ingrid Bergman's hand. It's such a swell picture and Ingrid and Gary are something to see in the love scenes. John is at his best, too. He hadn't been in a movie for a long time before he did "Saratoga Trunk," but even though this was made two years ago, he was paged for "Confidential Agent" and given a long term contract. In "Agent" he'll have the company of Lauren Bacall and Charles Boyer.

★ ★ ★

JOSEPH STANLEY PENNELL, author of "The History of Rome Hanks" and a very sick man a few weeks ago, is not only on the road to recovery, he has married Lt. Elizabeth Rees. The bride, a WAC, is a former advertising executive and the wedding took place in St. Louis, where he has been hospitalized. Before he was taken ill, Pennell had been working on a sequel to "Rome Hanks," probably delving into the romantic angle which was subdued in the first novel. With his private life romance turning out so well he'll be looking at love through rose-colored glasses.

ONE MAN'S POISON is another's red points—which reminds me of the fabulous fate that has overtaken Gloria Warren. Remember her? She was a pretty little singer who made one movie for Warners, "Always in My Heart," and then never rated another chance. The picture wasn't a hit, so I suppose they figured the kid had nothing. But here is where the joker comes in. "Always in My Heart" has been a box office riot in South America and has played 25 weeks in Rio alone. Result is Gloria has been set by the Motion Picture Society for the Americas for $3000 a week to sing at the Casino Atlantico, and she couldn't get a "but" here.

ACQUANETTA is back from Mexico very unhappy over those "unfounded rumors" (the quotes are hers) that she ever planned to marry Jorte Pasqual, Mexican diplomat. The lady says there was never any talk of matrimony. That ain't the way I heard it, but she should know. Well, with romance shelved for the moment, Acquanetta is turning her attention to her career and has put her name on a deal for the second lemma lead in "Tarzan and the Leopard Man," with Johnny Weissmuller. He has dropped 35 pounds from the chassis, which becomes him no end.

Boston After Dark

CIGARETS, CIGARETS! We wish we could give you the name of the Merchant Marine officer who told us this story . . . You are asked to take our word for it that he is a highly reputable young man, of a fine Boston family, and to believe that the story is absolutely true . . . He and his ship arrived on this side Sunday after a crossing from a European port . . . But his ship came home "in ballast," which means that it had no cargo . . . No cargo of any account, that is, unless you consider the comparative value to a country supposedly at the mercy of an acute cigaret shortage of a cargo of 50 tons of cigarets.

* * *

THE 50 TONS of cigarets, it seems, were an afterthought . . . They came from Belgium . . . They were loaded because the ship had nothing with which to fill its holds, and even so small a loading as 50 tons served to give the crew a bit of practice on the winches . . . We wonder how many 50-ton lots of cigarets are cluttering up the docks of Europe?

* * *

HERE IS THE follow-up on the same subject—a subject which we have taken to heart in an effort to break the phony black market in this commodity . . . Johnny Wilson, the former middleweight champion of the world, and now the proprietor of a South End bistro known as the Swanee Grill, gives an honest sidelight on the cigaret "shortage" . . . Johnny says that he has halved his weekly purchase of the supposedly "precious" cigarets . . . "I'm having difficulty selling the amount I'm now buying," the former boxer said . . . "It's a lot of grief, too. Next week I'm putting cigaret vending machines back in my place . . . It may be the first machine in a Boston cafe, but it won't be long before everybody does the same, I predict."

* * *

AND HERE is a final word on the subject . . . If the public will exercise a small amount of stubbornness, this black market in smokes can be really broken—and quickly . . . If a clerk says: "Sorry, no cigarets!" move on to another store . . . Pay no under the table (or under the counter) premium . . . There are cigarets enough in Greater Boston now to satisfy the war-boom demand . . . And the sorry part of the story is that there have been enough cigarets on hand for months.

THE NAVY POSSIBLY will register a complaint against the bullpuster's artist who shows a Navy officer leading a girl through a dance with his right hand extended, because the gentlemen who officer Uncle Sam's ships are generally most normal and it's an old American custom to lead a girl through the evolutions of a ballroom dance with the left arm extended . . . Until the Navy issues a communique, however, this item will be a guide to "what's wrong with the picture" on the huge sign advertising a Boston roof cabaret on the main highway to Boston from Suffolk Downs and the North Shore . . . The effect strikes an observer immediately as being out of key, but flitting past in an automobile the error might elude a casual student of the landscape . . . But that's what's wrong . . . The man is leading in the position normally taken by the girl on a dance floor.

* * *

ON THE HOME FRONT, druggists who carry a sidebine of magazines—as most of them do—have a complaint of their own against so-called tie-in sales of periodicals . . . Distributors "bury" their counters under a weight of all sorts of magazines, drugstore proprietors say . . . Most of the unknown periodicals are so sales-resistant that they linger on the shelves longer than shaving-mugs might, if shaving-mugs were manufactured these days . . . The complaint does not say that an attempt is to be made to force sales of the unwanted periodials . . . What the drugstore bosses object to is the bookkeeping entailed, and the perennial errors in returning an unsold consignment . . . But to get the 15 or 20 magazines which have a ready public, the store-owners say they have to carry a whole catalog of unfamiliar magazines—many of them propaganda organs . . . The protest is taking the form of a strike against handling magazines of any description . . . (And against an insidious attempt to bore in by ideological publishers and "authors.")

Washington Scene

WASHINGTON, July 11 — There used to be a famous act in vaudeville called "The Two Black Crows." These gentlemen, working in blackface, got off some of the most beautiful and irrelevant dialogue I have ever heard.

For instance, one of the partners would drawlingly remark that he had white horses and black horses on his farm but that he had discovered the white horses ate more than the black horses. The other black crow would ask if he had any explanation for this interesting phenomenon.

Senator Wheeler

"We've tried to figure it out from every angle," the partner would retort, "but the only thing we can think of is that we have more white horses."

Another gag was about buying a pig in the spring for $4 and selling it in the fall for $4. When the partner would protest that he couldn't make any money that way, the other would say:

"Yes, but we had the use of the pig all summer."

"MR. BAILEY: The Senator from Montana has called the Committee of the House of Representatives the Interstate Commerce Committee. I do not like to dispute him, but the correct name for the House Committee is the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. That is quite a different committee.

"MR. WHEELER: Yes, but that committee handles the same kind of legislation as the legislation about which the Senator from North Carolina has been speaking. The Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries of the other house ordinarily handles the same legislation that is handled by the Senate Commerce Committee.

"MR. BAILEY: The organization of the committees in the other house is entirely different from that in the Senate. I am sure that every member of the Senate knows that I have a real affection for my friend the Senator from Montana; but he reminds me of the ancient harps. It was said they were so delicately tuned and so highly strung that they could be hung from a tree in the desert and the wind would play tunes upon them.

"MR. WHEELER: I do not want the Senator to skip over lightly the first bills which were sent to the Interstate Commerce Committee, and on which extensive hearings were held.

"MR. BAILEY: I was coming to them.

"MR. WHEELER: If the Senator is coming to them, very well.

"MR. BAILEY: I do not mind the harp playing a melody after I come to it, but when the Senator anticipates me with his melody I become embarrassed.

"MR. WHEELER: I hope the Senator will be careful in his use of the word 'harp.'

"MR. BAILEY: It is one of the most beautiful of instruments.

"MR. WHEELER: I understand it is one of the most beautiful of instruments, and I also understand that the Senator's remark was intended as a compliment; but I know that at one time in my home state a certain man ran as a candidate for office, and because of the fact that he referred to someone as a 'harp' he was defeated for office.

"MR. BAILEY: So far as I am concerned, I hope it will never happen to this Senator. However, I am not worried. I am sure the Senator meant his statement to be taken lightly. I recall some very beautiful lines about the harp, substantially as follows:

"'By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down, yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion.

"'We hanged our harps upon the willows in the midst thereof.

"'For there they that carried us away captive required of us a song; and they that wasted us required of us mirth, saying, sing us one of the songs of Zion.'

"When I speak of the harp itself, there can be no reflection on the Senator from Montana.

"THE PRESIDING OFFICER: Does the Senator from North Carolina yield to the Senator from Montana?

"MR. BAILEY: Of course, I yield. I like to hear the music (laughter)."

MISS VADA WARD, who meets the most unusual people, reports that a very English gentleman picked her up in his motor the other morning. A few blocks farther on, he picked up another trolley-waiter who turned out to be equally British.

The two limeys—er, Britons—began comparing notes on their experiences in Ameddica. One complained that he was finding life most difficult and confusing here.

"I had a most distressing experience shortly after I arrived," he said. "I was walking down F st. with a companion who had arrived on the same boat. We came to a crossing and there was a large electric sign on a pillar saying:

"'Don't walk.'

"My friend grabbed me by the arm and rushed me across the street, remarking:

"'This is certainly a fast country, isn't it?'

"And, although we were running and positively not walking, one of your bobbies halted us and was most undiplomatic!"

New Cream Cure for Sun-Tired Eyes

Beauty

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Beauty and Fashion Editor

SUMMER SUN means glare . . . and glare means squinting, tired eyes. It is a good idea to wear GOOD dark glasses in the sun . . . to cut the light and release the strain on the delicate organism of sight.

But what's immeasurably vital to the smoothness of the framing tissues around the eye socket is a good eye cream . . . to keep that area out of the wrinkle class. If ever a time was most conducive to eye-corner tatting it is summertime when the sun dries out the skin . . . leaving it to pucker up like an accordion. Dry parched skin is much more apt to get this way . . . but when kept constantly lubricated . . . there is little opportunity for this to happen.

Whether you're in the city . . . in the country . . . or at the beach . . . the sun follows you like night follows the day . . . and every woman who prizes the smooth softness of her skin . . . who appreciates the power of a potent glance . . . will not dare to sally forth into broad daylight and sunlight without the protective covering of a grand eye cream in the area where an eye cream is a necessity.

One such excellent product is an amber-colored eye balm that contains an ingredient that is even good for the eye itself . . . when used on the lids as well as the sockets. It boasts of an element that acts as a soothing agent on the tissues and is anathema to the wrinkle-forming propensities of overworked eye environs.

So take not only the lacy pattern out of the corners . . . but help those tired sun-struck eyes back to alert freshness with daily applications of this cream-salve. A salon specialty among fastidious women . . . it is a purposeful product . . . and in summertime . . . an eye must.

For the name of this amber-gold eye cream, phone the Beauty Dept. . . . LIBerty 4000, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Wedding Date Depends On Furlough

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN:

On his next furlough my fiance and I are to be married—a small wedding in the church rectory, with only our relatives and attendants present. Since the date is so uncertain, I won't be able to have invitations engraved. Would it be correct to invite the relatives by notes? H. H.

The most convenient way (and proper too) to invite relatives who live in town is either verbally or by telephone. And notes of invitation are proper for those who live out of town. A practical plan is to write these relatives now, telling them of your plans and, if possible, an approximate date, saying that you will let them know at once the date and hour as soon as you can. Then you could write or telegraph the date and hour.

HYDE PARK, Tuesday—Last night I went down to the Hudson River State Hospital to speak to a group of conscientious objectors who, like so many others, are working in the State hospitals for the insane during the summer. This group belongs to the Mennonite Church.

The superintendent of the hospital told me they had undoubtedly raised the standards for the care of the patients, and had been of tremendous help in disclosing certain practices which existed there and about which he never before could get any real evidence.

He said if they could stay longer they probably would improve the standards even more.

* * *

THOUGH IT IS beginning to be a little less difficult to find people for the work which has to be done, it is true we have never given enough thought to finding the right type of people for positions in these institutions. The salaries are very low and it is hard to compete with outside opportunities.

Probably every employee in an institution for the insane should have some special training, either after he is employed or before; but we often employ people with no training and no background, simply because no one else is available at the salary offered.

HAVE YOU HEARD about the Toledo, O., plan for rebuilding their city? They have spent $250,000 on an exact scale model for "Toledo Tomorrow."

The plan is to have an airport virtually in the heart of the city, with underground train approaches and "congestion proof" highways; a single terminal for all bus, plane and train traffic, and a new port and harbor.

They hope to separate their business and residential districts so that the city will have the park-like appearance of certain parts of Paris and other cities which have been planned for beautiful effects.

Residential sections would be developed with their own stores, churches and recreational facilities.

They would do away with the old frame buildings and the congested areas which now exist, and the money scheduled for postwar purposes would be spent on a real plan, carefully thought through.

The scale model, which every citizen can look at when he wants to know what the future city of Toledo is going to resemble, will help to make all the people understand the plan.

Suits That Help You Defy the Heat

By BETTINA BEDWELL

THE SUIT is being groomed so that it can get around in the dog days weather. There are lots of cotton and rayon suits set aside for this purpose, and most of them are slated to be worn with bareback waists so you can grade the weight of your suit according to the temperature.

Claire McCardell is one of our best designers who devotes her talents to this kind of suit. She designed the one in our sketch, and makes it of cool black shantussa. The jacket has wide sleeves for extra coolness, and it flares into a perky little peplum below the waistline.

Twin rows of white stitching decorate the edges of the jacket and run down the left side of the wrap-around skirt. There is a halter-neck waist to wear with this suit.

EYE CARE is a summertime must . . . when the sun can be the undoing of the power of your glance, direct or indirect. Good dark glasses may help cut the glare of the potent rays of the sun . . . but an eye cream is much more important to those framing corners and the lids which flutter over them . . . if you crave unlined, smooth frames for your orbs . . . to accent their positive prettiness into the realm of Kathryn Grayson's loveliness.

Salads as Main Dishes

By MARTHA LEE

THERE'S AN IRRESISTIBLE APPEAL about salads in hot weather—they're so refreshing. And remember, they don't always have to be mere accompaniments to the meal; they can also serve as the main dish—or practically the whole meal. That is, if you put the right foods in them.

To illustrate the point—you can take any vegetable salad, made with either raw or cooked vegetables (or both), and add to it some cubes or small strips of cooked meat, and the salad becomes a main dish. Why? Because the meat adds a satisfying, sustaining quality which a main dish should have.

SUPPER MENU

Meat and Vegetable Salad Bowl
Hot Corn Muffins
Butter or Margarine Jelly
Green Apple Pie with Cheese
Coffee

One more good point to remember about a meat salad is the fact that a small amount of meat goes a long way, because you're combining it with other foods.

You don't need a precise recipe to make a good meat salad. Any cooked meat may be served this way, and the number of possible combinations is almost infinite. You may use leftover roast or pot roast, canned meat loaves, or ready-to-eat meats.

One good rule is to taste the salad before serving, and be sure it is well seasoned. It may need a little extra salt, a bit of mustard, or a dash of paprika.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS

In case you'd like a few ideas to start you off, here are some meat salad combinations which have proved excellent. We'll leave the proportions and the seasoning up to you.

Beef and Kidney Bean Salad

Chopped cooked beef, red kidney beans, chopped celery, pickle relish and tomato. May be served in tomato cups.

Minted Lamb Salad—Thin, small slices of cooked lamb, sliced cooked potatoes, a few green peas, lettuce hearts and French dressing with chopped fresh mint.

Chop Suey Salad—Diced cooked veal, chopped celery, cooked carrots and peas, pimento and cooked green pepper. Season lightly with soy sauce.

Salmagundi Salad—Chopped cooked ham, cooked macaroni, chopped celery, green pepper sweet pickles, mayonnaise. Garnish with tomatoes.

COLD MEAT SALAD

2 cups cold meat, diced
1 cup celery, cut fine
1 green pepper, minced, or
2 pimentos, minced
½ cup sliced olives
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
French dressing
½ cup salad dressing
½ cup cream, sweet or sour
Paprika Crisp lettuce cups

Cut meat in even dice. Cut celery and pepper or pimento very fine and place with meat in a bowl. Pour cold French dressing over mixture, mix well and allow to stand in refrigerator at least one hour. Drain off any extra French dressing. Add sliced olives and hard-cooked eggs. Add cream to cold salad dressing and add to other ingredients. Fold carefully until well mixed. Place in crisp lettuce cups. Sprinkle with paprika and serve very cold. If cream is heavy enough, whip before adding to salad dressing.

VARIATIONS

1—Cut eggs in quarters lengthwise, sprinkle with paprika and use as a garnish. Finely chopped chives or capers may be sprinkled over the salad.

2—Marinate diced cold meat with asparagus, peas and celery and add mashed hard-cooked egg yolk to salad dressing.

3—Marinate evenly diced meat with celery, peas and ripe or stuffed olives and proceed as above.

The Big Riddle: Army's Discharge Point System

By AUSTEN LAKE

PARDON ME WHILE I SHOVEL some fog! This problem in astral mathematics deals with the Army's system of point discharges, in which I see eye-to-eye with the Pentagon's brass hattery—both of us goggle-eyed and sun-dazzled. If this doesn't make a visible path through the mist, any discharge-eligible GI may pinch his nostrils and make bubbling noises with his tongue.

Austen Lake

Here's the pitch! It's a big ptomaine burp surrounded by a lot of lesser gas gripes, because some of the 85-points-or-better soldiers ARE getting discharged and some are NOT. The latter group watch their former fellows of fox hole, slit trench and billet go whooping back to civil freedom waving Army diplomas and screaming "Eureka," which is ancient Greek for "I have found it," while they stay wistfully scratching their itch. They feel they have done their alloted time, faced their share of combat risks and earned honorable exits—which nobody, even the Army, can deny. As "essential" soldiers, tagged for further service, they think they are being penalized for their own efficiencies—which in a way they are! Here's GI-Joe, rifleman with 85 points, who gets the green light. There's GI George, combat engineer sergeant with 101 points, who gets China-Burma-and-India.

The "Housekeeping" Troops Also Moan

THAT'S THE MAJOR WOE. A lesser one is the discharge delay among a minority group called "housekeeping" troops in this First Corps Area; about 2000 soldiers of long over-seas experience and battle stars who have the required points but are being held on duty in camp kitchens, HQ offices and MP patrols until the authorities can find suitable replacements. These moan because a recent Corps order arbitrarily hoiked up their discharge level to 125 points, of which few had enough, and later reduced it to 110, of which there is only a handful. The guys want to get out. But the Command can't let 'em go at the cost of paralyzing its "housekeeping."

The Army, normally pretty stiff collar with explanations, tries to make its position clear. It insists it never said that ALL soldiers with 85-or-better could promptly peel off their ODs. It tried to make it crystal clear, it says, by means of plain language pamphlets, lectures and movies that mechanics of demobilization of millions of men takes time; that the Jap war was still un-won; that trained soldiers are essential to the war effort and must be utilized even at the cost of further sacrifice.

As a sample of its fair dealing it points to article RR 1-1 which bears the mouthfilling title of "Plan for readjustment of Military Personnel after defeat of Germany; pp 7-D, Change-1. May 4, 1945." That's enough to scare any reader out of this column.

There's a lot of unintelligible double-talk in this article, which when reduced to plain, blunt Saxon-English says: "To avoid being unfair to soldiers with 85 discharge points or more who are being tagged for further service, review boards of seasoned officers will be established in every division area to reconsider each individual case." Under its ruling a unit commander can earmark a soldier for point-discharge and his judgment is irrevokable. That GI gets a final bath, discharge bonus, medical exam, a papa pat and he's OUT—EEEeeyoww!—usually within 48 hours of getting off the boat. Indeed since June 1, 10,200 such soldiers were exited from Fort Devens alone, though how many eligibles were tapped for holdover, dependent saith not. But the unit commander cannot ticket a soldier as "essential" without sending his case to the board for review. The board, theoretically, frowns, mumbles, broods and fumbles with its beard and . . . well, you can bet all the whiskers in Russia that it marks the guy "essential" too.

The Army Tried to Be Big-Hearted

IT'S JUST TOUGH TURKEY! There's nothing can be done about it! The dice just roll that way. The Army says it needs 'em, even if it does impose an enormous, extra sacrifice. So they stay! I only wish the rest of our Nation was as vigorous and impersonal in its dealings with "essential people"—like those wild-cat strikers who flout the WLB and their own union leaders at the cost of war efficiency and army essentials, and those black marketeers who are prime contributors to inflation, and lazy political stooges who feed from the public trough, and bond slackers who keep their dollars pickled. Then maybe these discharge eligibles who are held over for the second half of the double-header would be more reconciled to their sacrifical lot.

I say the Army flopped stupidly when it made any announcement of its point-discharge plan instead of silently and methodically giving limited discharges without feathers or fuss. The Navy and Marines are doing just that and getting a minimum of yowls. To be sure, there would have been a scattered screech as soon as some veterans got out and some, equally eligible, didn't—but not such a big-voiced, concerted holler as there is. The Army would have been damned in any case, but damned diminishingly, instead of the growing crescendo that exists.

Maybe the Army wanted to demonstrate paternal big-heartedness and give the "forgotten man" of the combat lines a crumb of hope. So it busted forth with a grandiose sounding scheme which the average GI read only to that line where it says, "85 points or more." Then the soldier quit reading and began to figure up his score without noticing the little joker about "essential soldiers."

If the man had 85 points he began dreaming about a custom-made sack suit, linen shirts and a felt fedora. He was fed up to the gills with military formation, saluting "sirs," spit'n polish, old maid fussiness, filth and fighting. He wanted OUT. And when some did, and he didn't, it created an understandable agony in his soul.

The Army flubbed its approach shot and has since four-putted the greens. The failure of the First Corps Command promptly to find and school "suitable" replacement for its discharge-eligible "housekeeping troops" is a not-unreasonable example, I trust! Or am I still shovelling fog?

Tribe Faces Travel Woes

By BILL GRIMES

On many occasions, before George "Duffy" Lewis was appointed traveling secretary by Bob Quinn, the Braves didn't know, until they climbed aboard their trains, whether they were going first class, in coaches or on flat cars.

But, since the dandy little "Sec" took over, the Braves have travelled better than any major league club. Before the war, "Duffy Lewis Specials" carried the Braves to and from all the Western ports of call and even from here to New York.

Duffy Lewis

However, now that the Office of Defense Transportation has cracked down on all civilian sleeping car service between points 450 miles or less apart, the Braves must expect some rough travelling for the remainder of the season.

The Braves start their second Western trip today. As the ODT order does not go into effect until noon Sunday next, Road Secretary Lewis is all set until the club reaches St. Louis. The Braves jump to Chicago for a three day stop-over and then move down to the Mound City for a Sunday double-header and two night games.

After playing the Cardinals, the Colemen are scheduled to go to Cincinnati. But, they have night games in St. Louis on Monday and Tuesday before opening on Wednesday afternoon at Crosley Field. Unless they can get the Cardinals to move up Tuesday night's attraction and play a twi-night game on Monday, the Braves must make a night jump in coaches to Cincinnati, for it is only 392 miles between those cities.

The Braves are going to run into more travel trouble getting out of Cincinnati, where they are listed for four games in three days. However, they can cut their visit short a day and play Friday's game on the next trip, when they have four open days between their series with the Reds in Cincinnati and the opening game with the Giants in New York.

But, if the Cincinnati club insists upon the games being played as per scheduled, the Braves will be confronted with another night ride in coaches to the Smoky City.

After their series with the Pirates in Pittsburgh, the Braves will head for New York via Syracuse and the Sampson Naval Station. Because they have agreed to play at Sampson, the Braves may be alloted a sleeper for the two nights it will require to reach New York.

Lt. Com. N. P. Strader, athletic officer at Sampson, has arranged a double-header for Wednesday, July 25. Strader starred at football at St. Mary's College, which is Duffy Lewis' alma mater, under Coach "Skip" Madigan and later was first assistant, and, then head coach, when Madigan went into the service.

The Braves will go to Sampson from Pittsburgh and the Giants from Cincinnati. The Braves will take on the Navy team in the morning and then the Giants will play the Sailors in the afternoon. It will be the first time that two big league clubs have played at Sampson on the same day. The Navy personnel is looking forward to a gala day.

Under the circumstances, it is quite probable that the ODT will ease up on its restrictions, so that the Braves and Giants can obtain accommodations to Syracuse, from where they will be taken to Sampson in Navy buses, and then back to their sleepers at the Salt City and on to New York.

The Braves will return home from New York on August 2 for a three-week stay.

APACHE HEADS FIELD

CAMDEN, N. J., July 11 (AP)—Belair Stud's Apache, conqueror of Devil Diver in the Toboggan Handicap, heads the field today in Garden State Park's opening day headline event, the $10,000 Camden Handicap.

Pirates Prexy Optimistic

PITTSBURGH, July 11 (AP)—President Bill Benswanger of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who went to Boston last week for an answer to "what's wrong with the Pirates," said today he was satisfied the team was just in a slump.

"We've still got a chance for the pennant—a good chance," the bespectacled prexy said. "We're too strong a club to stay where we are."

A preseason pennant favorite, the Pirates got off to a slow start, then spurted into first place. But a disastrous road trip resulted in 13 losses in 20 games, dropping the club to fifth and sending Benswanger winging to Boston for a chat with Manager Frank Frisch.

Benswanger said he is counting on a long home stand beginning with a night game against the Phillies tomorrow to put the Bucs back on top.

"This seems to be a year when most teams are going up and down like a seesaw," he philosophized. "The Giants were in first place, then fell to seventh. The Dodgers were hot, but they slumped. And now Chicago and St. Louis are on top.

"We're only 6½ games out of first—and that's not much farther behind than last year when we were in second place."

Chisox Certain to Play Nat Series

CHICAGO, July 11, (AP)—Any worries Washington partisans may have had that the Chicago White Sox xmight not bein Griffith Stadium for the opener of a three game series with the Washington Senators tomorrow night can be forgotten.

Manager Jimmy Dykes, worried when train accomodations apparently were not available Monday, said last night reservations had been obtained and the team would arrive in the capital Thursday morning.

Huestis Is Elected Revere Vice President

George E. Huestis, advertising and publicity director for Wonderland, Revere greyhound racing oval, has been elected vice president of the Revere Racing Association, operators of the track announced last night.

Huestis, a resident of Revere for more than 30 years, has handled publicity for the track since its opening in 1935.

ZIVIC DEPS THIRD

PITTSBURGH, July 11, (AP)—Fritzie Zivic's 100th ring appearance last night developed into no more than his third straight defeat when Ossie (Bulldog) Harris captured a 10-round split decision.

Holmes Strives to Rate With All-Time Hitters

By JACK CONWAY

TOMMY HOLMES' sensational rise to fame as a hitter has caused keen baseball observers to compare him with the greatest batters the game has known. Before Holmes can be classed with famous hitters like Hughey Duffy, Napoleon Lajoie, Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Ted Williams, Sam Crawford, Rogers Hornsby, Ed Delahanty, Honus Wagner, Joe DiMaggio, Joe Medwick and other stars it will be necessary for him to display batting power over a period of several years.

It is not expected that Holmes will continue his consecutive hitting streak indefinately. Like other top hitters, he will have his batting slumps, but if he is able to maintain a high average at the bat for three or four years he will be entitled to a place alongside the leading belters the game has known.

Ted Williams

I never had the opportunity to see Hughey Duffy bat but anyone who could run his average to .428 had to possess amazing ability. Duffy combined speed with his natural batting class and he beat out many an infield hit.

Lajoie was a power as well as a place hitter. The big Frenchman could do most anything when at the bat.

This writer always had a particular admiration for Babe Ruth. This dated back to the days when Babe pitched, played first base and also the outfield for the Red Sox. We traveled with the Sox in those days, and wrote a feature sports column which appeared in newspapers and magazines under Ruth's name.

Ruth was the greatest home run specialist of all time. Apart from the fact he established a world's record with 60 home runs he also had more color when at the bat than any of the other distance hitters.

Ruth hit his longest home run in an exhibition game against the Giants at Tampa, Fla., while he was still with the Sox. Benny Kauff was playing center field for the Giants. The diamond was set inside the infield of a race track, and Kauff played the deepest center field I have ever seen anyone do. Ruth took his usual windup at the bat, turned his head back towards the grandstand, then came whirling forward and drove the agate well over Kauff's head.

Cobb All-Round Star

TY COBB in our opinion was the greatest all-round ball player. He could hit, repeatedly leading the American League in batting, was a daring base runner and a brilliant fielder.

The modern ball player does not take the reckless chances that skyrocketed Cobb to fame. On close plays at first base, Cobb would dive into the bag. Ty didn't ask favors from any ball player. All he asked was that no one try to block him. It was a dangerous thing for a player to get in Cobb's way when the latter was racing for a base, and he would hit the base with terrific force, and it was too bad for anyone who was in his way.

Bill Carrigan, who used to manage the Sox and also catch, was one of the few backstops who would not give Cobb an inch at the plate.

Ted Williams a Natural

TED WILLIAMS is one of the most natural hitters this writer has ever seen. He was on his way to surpass the records of the oldtimers when he enlisted in the Navy Air Corps. Williams left big league baseball at a time when he was establishing new records.

If the Japanese war should end before next Spring, Williams may be back with the Sox in 1946. He will still be young enough to take up where he left off to enter service.

Holmes has displayed a steady improvement in his batting. He now hits to any field.

Tommy is a spot as well as a heavy hitter. This change in style keeps opposing pitchers and fielders worried. They do not know what Holmes is going to do next.

The Braves are today on their way West for a series with the Cubs. Then they play the Cards. They will oppose all of the Western clubs before they return home. This road trip will be a test for Holmes, and it will do much to determine where the Braves will end up this year.

Give Holmes, Workman, Culler and the other Braves stars top pitching support and they will lift the club in the league standing. The Braves pitching has been erratic, but it is hoped that there will be an improvement.

Greenberg to Face Red Sox Tomorrow

Three Detroit Tigers pitchers, including Paul "Dizzy" Trout, were on the ailing list today as the Tigers reached Boston for the Thursday opener of a 16-game eastern road trip.

Trout, who has been bothered by a back injury this season, has dropped 10 games while winning eight. The big right-hander, who won 27 while losing 14 in 1944, entered a Detroit hospital Tuesday for a physical checkup.

Joe Orrell, another Tiger twirler, was left out of the road trip because he is scheduled to have some teeth pulled. The third casualty was Jerry Burke, a schoolboy pitcher signed by the Tigers recently.

Burke, who was to have made his first road trip, injured his shoulder Monday when he fell on a beach.

Tigers' general manager Jack Zeller revealed that Hank Greenberg, who rejoined the Tigers last month after release from the Army, has been bothered by sore leg muscles. Greenberg spent Monday and Tuesday in New York taking massages to ease the leg condition, Zeller said.

The Tigers official said Greenberg would be in left field when the American League leaders clash with the Boston Red Sox Thursday.

Majors Net $225,000 for Charity

By The Associated Press

Maj. League clubs hit the road today toward more intersectional series after winding up a seven-fame charity program that netted war relief organizations more than $225,000. Action will be resumed tomorrow.

Crowds totalling 170,025 turned out for the two-days of exhibitions with the American League grabbing five of the seven decisions.

Largest gathering was Monday's turnout of 47,144 at Chicago but Boston club officials estimated their afternoon game yesterday realized over 70,000 although only 22,809 paid to watch it.

Dave Ferriss confined his pitching to the righthanded variety and kept Tommy Holmes from getting a hit in three innings but the Braves flychaser got his daily single later on. Randy Heflin and Clem Hausmann jobbed up on the Braves, after Ferriss finished, to give the Red Sox an easy 8-1 verdict.

As an added feature of the Fenway Park game, site of the 1945 all-star tilt called off by the ODT, the Tobin brothers put on their family act with infielder Jack of the Red Sox nicking brother Jim of the Braves for a cheap single.

Bert Shepard, one-legged war veteran, toiled four innings in his first mound appearance for Washington to get credit for a 4 to 3 edge over Brooklyn in a tilt that attracted 23,791 fans and $22,760.

Luke Sewell gave the Cardinals a lok at his Brownie pitching staff, using one an inning, and the nine hurlers blanked the world champs with two hits, 3-0, before 24,113. A double by Red Schoendienst and Ray Sanders' single were the only safe blows. One of the tossers was Pete Appleton, making his first appearance since leaving the Navy.

In the battle of the cellar clubs, the Phillies nosed out the Athletics in Philadelphia, 7-6, with only 4835 fans on hand. Jimmy Foxx made his major league debut as a pitcher, but wa sslugged off the hill when the A's counted six times in the fifth.

Jack Almost Lost $446,846

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11 (AP)—The world's heavyweight boxing championship undoubtedly is the most valuable title in all sports. In 1926 when he was approaching negotiations for its defense against challenger Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey was willing to put it on the block for a guarantee of $300,000. He ended up getting $746,846, the largest purse of his career, $446,846 over his own bid.

Gene Normile, former race-track operator, sportsman and a former manager of Dempsey, recently told the story of how the first fight with Tunney was made.

"Dempsey and I met Tex Rickard in Ft. Worth, Rick coming from his home in Henrietta, Tex., not far off. On the morning of the appointment, Jack said to me, 'Now, tell Rickard you want $300,000 for my end. Fire it right at him and stand your ground. He'll agree to it.'

"Rickard came up to the room. Dempsey was in the barber shop. Tex flipped back his hat and said: 'Let's get down to business. How much do you want for Jacks' end?'

"I want $500,000 guarantee, 50 per cent over the first million dollars and 51 per cent of the movie receipts.

"Tex squinted at me and remarked, 'Man, you're tough. I was going to offer you $450,000, plus the percentages.'

"I came back at him with an offer to flip a coin whether we got $450,000 or the half million. That was when Rickard proved to me why he was the biggest promoter in the history of boxing. He said, 'No, we won't flip. I'll give you $475,000 and we'll start from there.'

"Jack's take totaled $746,846. I'll never forget those figures as long as I live. The movies only brought $26,000 as they couldn't be shipped out of Pennsylvania.

"Rickard could toss out an offer of nearly a million dollars as a guarantee on the on hand, yet on the other hand he was as thorough as a professional efficiency expert. On the financial statement we received from him was a deduction of 2 cents for a postage stamp."

The Philadelphia fight attracted the largest boxing crowd in history, 120,757 who paid $1,895,733. A year later in Chicago, 104,943 fans paid $2,658,660 to see Dempsey's unsuccessful try to win back the crown from Tunney. Tunney's purse of $990,445 was the largest ever paid a fighter.

'Learn to Swim' Campaign Opens

The first of a series of Hearst "Learn to Swim" campaign meets will be held at the Tufts Square pool in Medford, Saturday afternoon, at 2:30.

Early entries are piling up from all parts of New England and the championship meet promises to be one of the best. A large team of men and women are coming up from Providence and will represent the Wanskuck Boys Club of that city.

Several New England title holders will be wearing the colors of the Rhode Island team including, Joe Prada champ of the junior 100-meter swimmers; Ed Mista, two-crown winner of the 150 medely and the senior 100-meter races; and Johnny Masso 100-meter breast stroke champion. All three of the men have entered the N. E. 220-yard free style championship race at the Medford pool.

Ladies who will swim for the "Rhody" gang are the three seniors, Jean, Joan and Marion. The last named is the womens' senior outdoor 100 meters breast-stroke champion. A 55-yard novice threat will be Althea Mercer of this same club.

The meet sponsored by the Boston Daily Record and the Boston Evening American in conjunction with the Youth Committee of the City of Medford will be chock full of excitement in the events closed to Medford residents. These races will be held both for girls and boys.

East Boston New Hub Navy Home

Immediate repairs to be made on the Barry Playground in Charlestown will again force the Navy Yard A. A. to secure new home grounds and Bob Cusick, director of the Park Leagues has announced that the Navy Yarders will play their games at the American Legion Park in East Boston for the next two weeks.

The Navy Yard club will christen the new home field tonight when they meet the South Boston Linehan Club, present tennants of third place in the league standings. The Navy Yarders, two games behind the Casey Club, have added the services of Curt Fullerton, former Red Sox chucker to their staff and will attempt to close up the two-game gap with the Caseys.

The only other game scheduled for tonight finds the Dick Casey Club travelling to Healy Field in Roslindale to meet the Hicks Engineers.
